Mother's Day >

Parenting through the ages

By M.Rajini

Parenting as a subject has stirred up interest in our readers (Ref Mother Day article dated Mar.17), so much so that we have a couple of parents who wished to narrate their experience in a candid manner. That would be great because the essence of their learning should not be lost under the garb of 'societal pretence'. We promised anonymity. Let's call a 'spade a spade'. Here it is...

A mother's saga is presented to readers as a celebration of Mothers' Day today:

My daughter was a precious gift from God, born after 5 years of anxious wait. So very precious. God had planned this to make me a better and mature mother. I was confident that my offspring would be a model kid. I was a working woman and had to report for work the very next day my maternity leave ended. I left my 3-month-old infant in the able hands of my mother-in-law and headed to my slave driving office - 8 am to 10 pm. No time even to call and enquire how she was doing. I was never there for her till her teens. And, our conversations were limited to her homework and upcoming exams, because I thought I was optimally using the available time to discuss studies!! Stupid of me to think I was spending quality time with my child. I thought that was all that there was to her life (Seriously? How ignorant I was). I never asked about her day at school, her teachers and her friends. Parent-teacher meetings used to be a bitter experience for me as it was about her poor academic performance. But that never bothered me much, as I myself was not great academically. She was a very well-mannered and soft-spoken kid, which was very important to me. I prided myself on it. What else could possibly go wrong?

Oh! What a misconception. I never realised that she could be keeping things from me for fear of judgment, punishment, and yelling. I quit my job when she entered her teens. This decision was based on my "assumption" that I had to be there for her during those sensitive years. I was never there when she was sprouting, it was naive of me to expect magic. How wrong I was to think that she would come running to me when she was scared or in confusion. I had already let her drift away.

She was in her own world. I realised that I was as much a stranger to her as someone next door. I have missed creating a bond during her early years and suddenly expect her to accept me. But I was her mother, isn't it natural for her to run to me for help? Nope. It doesn't happen that way. Just like any other relationship, there has to be TRUST. Sadly, that was missing on both sides. She never trusted me, and I was paranoid about her all the time. I was hearing so many shocking stories about teenage kids and social media abuse and how the role of parents is very important in protecting the kids, so I was always, On Guard.

It was all too overwhelming. That was the time when social media was taking the world by storm. Kids were taking on to it like fish to water and parents were struggling to get a grasp of it. The kids were enamoured by its wide net. The fact that they could make friends in an instant without even having to meet in person was so mind-blowing. It had created a huge divide between us.

In her eighth grade (13 years) she was given a smartphone as a gift (very much against my wish). She convinced me about the necessity of the internet for her assignments. I was witnessing the gradual increase in her network of friends. She was randomly mentioning names of boys who weren't even in her school. She said it was her friend's friend and he was cool. She would attend a birthday party, and I would naively assume it to be her classmate, but it would be of her friend's friend's friend who was in college. When I come to know of it, all hell will break loose and she will just say that I am over-reacting.

Then she started doing things on the sly, due to my (unreasonable!!) reactions and kept me in the dark about her whereabouts. Going to parties required spending and I started noticing money missing around the house. The credit card was used without my knowledge complete with OTP and all. So much for my ignorance of technology and my belief that a child of mine cannot stoop so low. I started panicking as all this was new to me. I never signed up for these twists in parenting.

Alumni gathering at St. John's School

The St. John's School and Junior College, Besant Nagar, on May 4, hosted a heartwarming reunion, wherein around 100 former students from various batches gathered, and shared cherished memories and experiences.

The gathering, which has been a tradition since 2017, witnessed alumni from as far back as the batch of 1988, highlighting the enduring bond and camaraderie fostered by the school over the years.

Attendees enjoyed a sumptuous lunch and high tea, providing ample opportunities for old friends to reconnect and reminisce about their school days. The atmosphere was filled with laughter and nostalgia as alumni exchanged stories and caught up on each other's lives.

Special mentions were made to individuals who have made significant contributions to the school community and beyond. Their dedication and achievements were celebrated, serving as inspiration for current and future generations of Johnites.

Discussions regarding future alumni gatherings were also on the agenda, with attendees expressing enthusiasm for continued reunions and networking opportunities.

The St. John's Besant Nagar School extended its heartfelt gratitude to all attendees for making the reunion a resounding success.

For further information about upcoming events or to get involved in alumni activities, interested parties are encouraged to contact Aruna Kotra at 98842 21704 or Vee Rravi Kkanth at 73388 07112.

Olcott school alumni meet

The alumni of the 1999 batch of Olcott School recently organised a meet at the school premises. They attended the meet along with their family, which spread a very pleasant vibe on the occasion. "Very nice to see them well settled in life," said the school.

The alumni shared their school experiences and memories. "They seemed to have enjoyed every moment of their stay in school," the school added as the students specially mentioned the noon meal and the good lunch they relished. They had also invited their old teachers who also shared their memories. Some students had come from Kerala, Coimbatore, Pondicherry etc.

The girls were very lively and thanked the tailoring teacher, who was instrumental in teaching them the craft, which was their livelihood today. They had also organised lunch that day.

The students donated notebooks to the school. "Overall they were so proud to be part of the school. We were happy to hear their success stories and see them so confident and happy in life," the school said.

Courses from IIT

BS course in Data Science

Admission is open for IIT Madras' BS Degree in Data Science and Applications. The course, does not require the students to write the hypercompetitive JEE.

Being taught online, with examinations held in physical mode at 150 centres all over the country and abroad as well, the BS Degree has succeeded in democratising access to IIT-Quality higher education, breaking down barriers such as geography and age.

Late date to apply: May 26; Apply through website: <https://study.iitm.ac.in/ds/>. The fee is completely waived for all female students with annual family income of less than Rs. 5 lakh per annum and male students with annual family income Rs. 1 lakh per annum.

MTech in E-Mobility for Working Professionals

IIT Madras is launching an industry-oriented web-enabled M.Tech in E-Mobility (WEMEM) for working professionals. The MTech program was conceived with inputs from academic and industry experts and would be continuously upgraded based on industry needs.

The Program would run over seven academic terms, with up to three academic terms in a calendar year. The first batch will start in the beginning of September and the participants will be selected based on a test on Fundamental Mathematics and Physics principles.

Late date to apply: May 26; Apply through website: <https://code.iitm.ac.in/emobility>.

Tips to make the safest city safer

By Jitendra Gaglani,
Thiruvanniyur

The recent initiative by the Chennai Police Department to deploy the Pink Squad in Chennai Metro is praiseworthy. It ensures peace of mind for women travellers. However, there are issues of pressing concern in MTC buses that call for similar preventive steps.

'It is better to prepare and prevent than to repair and repent.' – Ezra Taft Benson First things first. The MTC is plagued by a serious shortfall of buses with a dismal 3,500 buses catering to this megacity of over 1.2 crore people as against the requirement of 7,000. Adding to the woe of overcrowding of buses is their dismal frequency. Buses carry over 160 passengers during peak hours in stark contrast to their capacity of 70-83 passengers. Some women passengers opine that life was easier when they were charged for bus tickets. At least, then, the frequency of whiteboard buses was better.

Secondly, initiatives such as 'Neenga Road Raja Va?' or possibly, 'Neenga Bus Badshah Va?' or 'Neenga Train Thillalangadi Va?' are nice to hear but they also come with their fair share of drawbacks. Snitching on offenders to the law enforcement department only adds to the onus on honest citizens besides, it shows them in a bad light. The offender thus booked ends up not only paying a fine but also holding a grudge against the reporter. Why sow the seed of discord in a peace-loving city like Chennai? If the system is properly monitored remotely, law-abiding citizens would act less as sleuths and focus more on earning their daily bread.

London perfectly exemplifies the effortlessness of automated monitoring vis-à-vis onerous physical monitoring.

Quick fact: Research by Clarion Security Systems estimates that there are over 942,562 CCTV

Cameras in London, meaning there is 1 CCTV camera for every 10 people in the capital. You are likely to be captured on London CCTV up to 70 times per day. (2022)

Practical solutions:

- Expand bus fleet: The department would do well to procure new buses, especially whiteboard, to make the ride comfortable for women travellers.

- Perception and attitude makeover: Increase the frequency of buses to such an extent, say one bus for every 5 minutes, that MTC becomes the most sought-after mode of transport for intra-city travel. If India can reverse the brain drain, Chennai can very well reverse the shift from public to private transport. People would be tempted to give up their two-wheelers and cars in favour of MTC buses.

- Lathi as potent as Khakhi: Deploy Pink Squad in every bus and every bus stop to make the trip safer. The mere sight of lathi would deter miscreants from perpetrating eve-teasing and molestation.

By taking the aforementioned initiatives, Chennai would, in every sense, be known as the Safety City in India.

BIS raid packaged drinking water unit with fake ISI mark

A team of officials from the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS), Taramani, conducted an enforcement search and seizure raid operation on May 1 at an unauthorised packaged drinking water bottling plant in Alamathi Village, Ponneri taluk based on information of a suspected violation of BIS Act, 2016.

During the operation, a total stock of 1782 numbers of 2 Litre PET bottles, 11616 numbers of 1 Litre PET bottles, 9600 numbers of 500 ml PET bottles and 10465 numbers of 300 ml PET bottles filled with 'packaged drinking water' and bearing labels marked with spurious ISI mark were seized. In addition, 2,58,000 nos. of labels (approximately) marked with spurious ISI marks were also seized.

"The manufacturer does not hold a valid BIS licence, and the firm violated Section 17 of BIS Act 2016 by applying spurious ISI marks on PET bottles," said a statement from BIS adding that action would be initiated against the offender. The offence is punishable with imprisonment up to two years or a fine not less than Rs. 2 lakhs, but may extend up to 10 times the value of goods or articles produced or sold or offered to be sold or affixed or applied with a Standard Mark or both as per Section 29 of BIS Act, 2016 for first contravention.

The authenticity of the BIS Standard mark can be verified using a mobile application called 'BIS Care App'. The general public can report the misuse of ISI marks by writing to BIS Chennai Branch Office, CIT Campus, 4th Cross Road, Taramani, Chennai-600113; email: cnb01@bis.gov.in. For more

Toppers from the neighbourhood

The results for the 10th and 12th standards of the Tamilnadu state were declared on May 6 and 10 respectively. Here are some of the toppers from our neighbourhood:

St. Patrick's Anglo-Indian Higher Secondary School, Adyar, is a school with a rich legacy of 150 years shining brightly in the realm of education. As in the past, this year too the school has recorded cent per cent results adding to its illustrious accolades. A total of 119 students appeared for the 12th Board Exams and all of them passed with good scores with many of them securing distinction.

C.Akash Antony secured the highest with 595 (state rank holder and school 1st) followed by M.Adiraj with 567 (school 2nd) and S.Kevin with 562 (school 3rd).

Corporation tightens rein on pet owners

The Great Chennai Corporation (GCC) Commissioner Dr J.Radhakrishnan, IAS, has issued an ultimatum to pet owners, following the gruesome attack on a child and its mother, in a park on May 5.

The GCC has stated that if any pet dog is found to misbehave or found to be a threat to the public, action will be taken against the caregiver, apart from action on the pet per the norms set by the Animal Welfare Board of India (AWBI).

This announcement has come at the heels of the shocking incident that occurred at a park in Nungambakkam, where a child was bit and mauled by two Rottweiler breed dogs owned by a person in the neighbourhood. When the mother tried to save the child, she was attacked too. Onlookers had to forcibly rescue the mother and daughter from the clutches of the dogs. They were carried by ambulance to the government hospital where they were treated with an Immunoglobulin vaccine. The Commissioner visited them and offered all help. He also assured that the Corporation would pay for their treatment.

Meanwhile, the dog was transported to a relative's place by the pet owner. GCC found that the owner had not procured the mandatory licence for owning the dog, thus the owner was remanded on May 6, under Sec.44 of the 1939 Act for Public Health. The dog is currently being monitored through photos sent by the caretaker.

This incident triggered the Corporation to tighten its reins on pet owners. They now have to mandatorily follow:

- Only one dog should be taken at a time for a walk in public spaces;

Representational image

- If the dog is of an aggressive breed, its mouth has to be covered by a muzzle while on the walk;

- The license and vaccination schedule record must be maintained by the owner;

- The pet has to be put on a leash with a chain;

- Pets are not allowed in the children's play area in the park.

Pet owners are advised to follow the guidelines issued by AWBI with respect to the treatment of pets and stray dogs, and obligations of caregivers and resident welfare organisations. Scan this QR code to check out the guidelines of AWBI.

Pet owners can obtain the license, by registering their pet with the GCC. Check out the GCC website: <https://chennaicorporation.gov.in/gc/online-services/>.

Pushpa Abhishek festival

The annual Puspha Abhishek festival at International Society for Krishna Consciousness's (ISKCON) Sri Sri Radha Krishna temple at ECR, is set to take place on May 12, from 6 pm onwards.

This sacred occasion offers devotees a unique opportunity to express their love and devotion towards the divine deities by showering them with flowers of various colours. Following the ceremonial bath of the deities in this floral tribute, the flowers are generously distributed among the devotees, allowing each participant to partake in the spiritual blessings offered.

The devotees then play with these offered flowers and celebrate ecstatic 'phoolon wali holi', a tradition with its root in the holy town of Vrindavana, explained ISKCON. Program schedule: kirtan mela - 9am to 9 pm, lecture - 6 pm, arati - 6.30 pm, abhishek - 7pm, prasadam - 7.45 pm. Watch it online at <https://www.youtube.com/@ISKCON.Chennai>.

First of its kind: Apartment implements greywater harvesting to combat water scarcity

By R. Swathi and T. Shanmugavalli

“Implementation of rainwater harvesting will pull us for a couple of months, but implementation of greywater harvesting, will ensure sustainable water availability,” points out A.D.C. Rajasabai, a resident of Coral Samudra, 2nd Seaward Road, Valmiki Nagar. His family has implemented greywater harvesting in his apartment for the past six years and is proud that they have not bought water since its implementation six years back.

“Rainwater harvesting happens when we have rains. However, we take water from the earth every day. Thus, is it not pertinent for us to return water to Mother Earth regularly? This was the crux of my thought for developing a greywater harvesting system,” explains Rajasabai, a postgraduate from IIT Kharagpur.

Greywater is water from sinks, washing machines and the bath area and is safe for harvesting as it contains fewer pathogens than blackwater from closets. Greywater is 40% of our regular water usage.

Rajasabai relocated from the USA nearly 20 years ago. He chose to settle at Thiruvanmiyur thinking that it is near the shore thus water would not be a problem. “But, just like the whole city, this locality too was reeling with water shortage and people were buying tankers of water. We, in our family, were wondering if we had made a mistake coming back, leaving our cosy life in the US,” he recalls.

Thankfully, his thoughts only motivated him to find a solution to the water problem. Soon greywater harvesting became a family project. His then 7th-grade son drew the first prototype with inputs from his daughter studying architecture at Anna University. “Back then this was a new concept and thus there was no awareness of it. While it was becoming a mandate by the Tamilnadu government for industries, there was not even a prototype available for a domestic setup. I was thus challenged to build a system from scratch,” he explains.

When an idea is new, not only is working on it an ambition, but its implementation in a community is a challenge. Mrs.Rajasabai explains, “Definitely everyone had apprehensions. However, the desperate need for water and the thought of independence from water tankers superceded it. Also, since the concept was unheard of, they gave us full reins.” Soon the Rajasabai family saw themselves engrossed in the project, which they called ‘Toja’.

But is greywater safe for reuse? “Absolutely! In a domestic setup, we can use greywater which has a little amount of soap and pathogens which becomes a nutrient for plants,” points out Rajasabai and adds, “We are using sand, which is the world’s best filter for greywater. It is this water that we pump back into our home.”

The final prototype of the greywater harvesting system was perfected by the family into a unique patented process that makes it cost-effective, safe, silent, odour and trouble-free, powered by gravity and a natural watering source for the local plants and trees. After more than 10 years of learning, and expert inputs from the now grown-up children, team Rajasabai tasted success. “Since 2018, there has been no looking back. This, along with rainwater harvesting, has helped us in maintaining our water table. Not only us, but the nearby apartments have also reaped the benefits from our systems. None of us have called for a water tanker since then. Also, previously, we had 6 borewells in our apartment. Now we use only one,” says Mrs.Rajasabai.

In an urban setup, where each inch is precious, how much space will the greywater harvesting system occupy? “Approximately, 4x4 feet space, for one patented filter. The essential part is that apartments must have separate greywater pipes from the bathrooms. In such a case, the pipes can be routed through a small collection tank,” he explains.

The collection tank is the only visible part of the system. Rajasabai has also provided a mechanism wherein the greywater can be routed to the sewage system in case needed, like during the rains when the water table is brimming.

In a city and time when apartments largely depend on water tankers for their daily needs, Rajasabai’s family have shown that sustainable water management systems are the only way forward.

While necessity is the mother of invention, those who succeed owe their success to perseverance. And the story of Mrs.Rajasabai’s family is no different. Mrs.Rajasabai was recently awarded the patent for their greywater harvesting system.

Pavement encroachments in Sastri Nagar

■ I am writing to bring to the attention of the concerned authorities, a pressing issue concerning the unauthorised occupation of a public space within our locality (Sastri Nagar).

Specifically, a personal shop and an eatery have encroached the public (corporation) area, leading to significant disruptions for local residents, particularly women.

The encroachment has resulted in several distressing consequences, including difficulty for women to navigate the streets safely due to overcrowding, unscrupulous parking of vehicles, as well as the unsanitary and inappropriate behavior of individuals loitering in the vicinity. This includes instances of public consumption of alcohol, littering, and even public urination, creating an atmosphere of discomfort and fear for residents, especially women, when venturing outside their homes.

Given the gravity of these concerns, I kindly request the authorities to address this issue promptly. It is imperative that appropriate measures are taken to restore the integrity of public spaces and ensure the safety and well-being of all community members.

Resorting to tradition in temples

■ A practice has emerged recently in our temples concerning the distribution of the vibuthi and kunkumam prasadam, which has given rise to certain disquieting trends. These prasadam are given in a small paper cover with a picture of the presiding deity and are sealed with stapler pins.

Though the intentions are laudable, but when one opens

Obstruction on pavement

■ The attached photograph shows the pathetic condition and dangerous situation of a pedestrian crossing on SP Road opposite Bharat University and Titan showroom.

Two discarded electric poles have been dumped on the pavement, thus making access difficult, especially for senior and differently-abled citizens. Some construction debris was already lying abandoned in the vicinity. Nearby electric / telecommunication cables are lying at the base of another pole.

I request the concerned authorities / departments to please clear the location and make it safe for residents and visitors. Their efforts would be highly appreciated.

- Deepak Bhatia, Gandhi Nagar.

the prasadam cover the picture of the Deity adorning the cover also gets torn in the process. Thus the torn cover with the disfigured deity's picture ultimately finds a place in the dustbin, which in effect tantamounts to throwing the God to the dustbin- indeed a sacrilege. Added to this the stapler pins also find a place in the stomachs of dogs and bovine cattle when they forage the dustbins. This practice also gives rise to the wastage of considerable paper not to speak of trees being cut for the purpose.

To put an end to this obnoxious practice it is suggested that we follow what our elders did in yesteryears. They made use of the small receptacles kept in the temples for the purpose and we can follow the same practice. We can also make use of the expired date sheet calendars generally kept near these receptacle cups to take home the Vibuthi and Kungumam prasadams. This measure will curtail the wastage of precious prasadam at home too. We also have been wondering how to dispose of the date-expired calendars bearing the images of Gods. This is one solution towards that.

Earlier we were resorting to bags generally yellow in colour, baskets etc to carry the articles required for Archana and we have now taken to plastics.

These changeovers have grossly affected the environment we live in. We need to do an introspection and will we correct our mistakes?

- Visalakshi Palaniappan, Kotturpuram.
